THE SPEAKERSHIP.

Carlisle Worried by the Newspapers—Active Lobbying. Special to the Gazette.

St. Louis Mo., November 15.—A Washington special to the Republican says Congressman Carlisle has been kept very busy for some days answering the lies published about him. Various newspapers have been busily representing his position. First they had it that he was a free-trader, he was accused of making speeches in favor of abolishing internal taxes next session. Then it turned out that it was Cox who made that speech. Now Carlisle is having a little rest. Randall is still at it. Cox has established his headquarters at Willard's with Gen. Slocum in charge. He is much annoyed at the frequent intimations in the press and on the street that the vote given him will be complimentary, and will leave him after the second ballot. He thinks there is a large unpledged element that will control the election, and says he will come in rapidly. Randall has experienced lobbyists from Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON.

The Texas Stone for the Washington Monument—Bold Ben. Butler Enters the Ring.

Washington, November 15.—Colonel Casey, engineer in charge of the construction of the Washington monument, has received no communication from the Texas authorities since the 16th of April concerning the stone to be placed by the state in the monument, for which $100 was appropriated by the legislature. The Washington marble works are now filling a contract for cutting the stone. The regulations require a stone six inches thick, four feet long and two wide. It should be inscribed with the state coat of arms. A conspicuous place has been selected for it. Nebraska appropriates $100 for a stone. Ben. Butler arrived to-day, and was immediately besieged by crowds. He is still full of political ambition, and will take a hand in the speakership contest for Cox.

MAIL DISCONTINUED.

The mail has been discontinued between Grandview, Johnson county, Texas, and the Texas and Pacific railroad.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

Randall claims he will have eighty-five votes on the first ballot, and be nominated on the second by the support of the New York delegation, which will abandon Cox. Springer, he says, will start with ten votes. As between Carlisle and Cox, the former will have three out of every four votes. He said congress would adjourn in May, and do much business. He refused to speak on the tariff or army legislation to come up for discussion. Kentucky is safe by fifty thousand; Pennsylvania is hopelessly Republican; New York is doubtful. Cox, therefore, gains strength rapidly.
